

FT PROFESSIONAL

Ask FT

FINANCIAL TIMES

My Account

OPINION

Columnists The FT View The Big Read Lex Obituaries Letters

Opinion

Add to myFT

Populism

King Charles, America and the futility of growth

The UK's stagnant economy and the US's dynamic one are both politically dysfunctional

Janan Ganesh

African economy

Lessons for countries on the edge

Africa's demographics are favourable, but leaders must prepare for future shocks

Abebe Aemro Selassie

Opec

The FT View. The twilight of Opec

UAE's departure leaves Saudi Arabia trying to hold together a fractious cartel

Trump tariffs

Can US trading partners still rely on the rule of law?

When it comes to settling trade disputes, the Trump administration wants to play judge, jury and executioner

Inu Manak

Australia

Australia's drive to get more blood flowing

The country has more recreational beekeepers than regular donors and is forced to rely on imports

Nic Fildes

Global Economy

The great commodities disruption

Trump's attack on Iran has served as a reminder of how interconnected the global economy remains

Martin Wolf

EU defence

The Big Read. Germany re-arms: what does it mean for Europe?

Paris sees risks for its industry and the continent's sovereignty in Berlin's rapid defence build-up

Scientific research

It's never a good idea to sack the entire National Science Board

Donald Trump is spurning the research that makes progress possible

Anjana Ahuja

Middle East war

Get used to the long Iran war

Tehran has a strong incentive to keep the conflict going

Edward Luce

Chinese business & finance

The FT View. Beijing's blunt message to its tech sector

China's ban on Meta-Manus deal is a warning to keep AI innovations at home

War in Ukraine

Russia's loss is Ukraine's gain in the Middle East

Moscow's ties with Iran and its waning power in the region give Kyiv a chance to forge new partnerships in the Gulf

Hanna Notte

UK politics

The real lesson of Reform's war on the history curriculum

Proposals for a new patriotic syllabus reveal the ambiguous appeal of rightwing populism

Stephen Bush

Promoted Content

Recommended

Sign up to the FT Opinion newsletter for insight and analysis from our top commentators

The latest Banx cartoons

Most Read

1 King Charles, America and the futility of growth

Janan Ganesh

2 The great commodities disruption

Martin Wolf

3 Get used to the long Iran war

Edward Luce

4 The problem with falling house prices

Neal Hudson

5 The real lesson of Reform's war on the history curriculum

Stephen Bush

More Opinion

APRIL 29 2026

Big Tech

Lex. Big Tech's earnings get ever bigger, and ever less useful

Save

Meta, Alphabet and peers are growing smartly, but their value hinges on hard-to-answer questions about AI supremacy

PREMIUM

 The GlaxoSmithKline logo on a sign at the GSK research centre, with pedestrian and directional symbols.

UK companies

Lex. GSK's game of catch-up might just work

Save

Drugmaker is looking to see which of its pipeline of drugs can be pushed forward while also trying to buy time

PREMIUM

 Kevin Warsh gestures while speaking during a Senate Banking Committee confirmation hearing.

Federal Reserve

Warsh can bring a much-needed trade-off on rates to the Fed

Save

The designate chair has signalled a willingness to take the central bank's balance sheet into account when setting monetary policy

David Zervos

 UBS logo sign in the foreground with the Swiss Parliament building and a Swiss flag visible in the background.

UBS Group AG

Lex. UBS's bumper profit both helps and hinders its case on capital rules

Save

Long fight over just how well fortified its balance sheet needs to be is inching in Swiss bank's direction

PREMIUM

UK house prices

The problem with falling house prices

Save

Homes are too expensive in the UK, but a large correction would be bad for everyone — including first-time buyers

Neal Hudson

 The OPEC logo in blue is displayed on a sign outside the organization's headquarters building.

Markets

Opec without the UAE

Save

Plus, gilts hit rough water

Hakyung Kim

PREMIUM

 The UAE national flag waves near a desert roadside with the Hassyan power and water production complex visible in the background.

Opec

UAE opens up an Opec fissure

Save

Exit represents a rejection of the production-control system dominated in recent years by Saudi Arabia

John Kemp

 A Shell logo on an oil storage tank at the Pernis refinery, with refinery infrastructure and a cyclist passing in the foreground.

Oil & Gas industry

Lex. Iran war oil price windfall gives Shell a chance to edge ahead of BP

Save

Extra funds mean majors can now in theory increase exploration without cutting shareholder returns

PREMIUM

 Two people stand back to back with arms crossed, both looking away from each other, against a background of faded banknotes.

Inheritance

How can we prevent our children from fighting over our estate?

Save

We worry they will fall out over their inheritance

Lucy Warwick-Ching

 Donald Trump holds up the signed "Genius Act" document while people around him applaud at the White House.

Stablecoins

The stablecoin stumbling block

Save

The crypto tokens are not yet safe enough to be used at scale in the settlement of large, wholesale financial transactions

Daniel Heller

Behavioural economics

Rage in the age of X

Save

It feels like politics is more fraught today — is it?

Tim Harford

 Tom Dixon sits on a modern sofa with curved upholstery, surrounded by contemporary lighting fixtures he designed.

Design

Britain's top furniture designers are made in Milan

Save

Tom Dixon's control of his own brand makes him an outlier among London creatives

John Gapper

APRIL 28 2026

 A close-up of a Jack Daniel's Tennessee whiskey bottle with a glass of whiskey and ice in the background.

Mergers & Acquisitions

Lex. Brown-Forman's choice: straight-up or with an M&A mixer

Save

Maker of Jack Daniel's breaks off talks with Pernod, but other value-creating tie-ups may still make sense

PREMIUM

 Three yellow Spirit Airlines airplanes are parked at gates at Fort Lauderdale-Hollywood International Airport.

Airlines

Lex. Spirit Airlines' dismal prospects could soon be everyone's problem

Save

Lenders may flinch at a government bailout but the alternative could be worse

PREMIUM

Populism in Europe

What the Grasset affair tells us about modern elites

Save

Protests by authors at the French publishing house are a symptom of the struggle between establishment and insurgents

Hugo Drochon

 A red cargo vessel named Al Mabroukah 2 is anchored in calm waters at the Strait of Hormuz.

Markets

Wall Street is getting twitchy on oil prices

Save

Plus, dollar dreams and reality

Katie Martin

PREMIUM

 A protester wearing a Zapatista mask holds up a large cutout of a 200 peso banknote, with her face showing through it, during a demonstration.

Americas economy

Iran war shows Latin America has left its original sin behind

Save

For 30 years, every oil shock broke Latin American bonds. This one didn't

Erika Mouynes

 Close-up of the Rivian R1T electric vehicle's steering wheel and dashboard, showing two large digital screens at a technology conference.

Automobiles

Lex. Rivian is bringing software-as-a-service to the road

Save

Electric-vehicle maker wants to license its code for other carmakers

PREMIUM

 A Compass "for sale" sign with agent contact information stands outside a white house as several people approach for a viewing.

Property sector

A troubling plan to revive the frozen US property market

Save

Buyers should beware the real estate dark pools

Brooke Masters

APRIL 27 2026

 The Honda O Series Saloon prototype, a futuristic white electric sedan, is displayed under pink and purple lighting.

Honda Motor Co Ltd

Honda and the power of (broken) dreams

Save

A brilliant and adventurist beacon for Japanese industry in the past is now stumbling

Leo Lewis

 Donald Trump and King Charles III stand side by side as a member of the Guard of Honour salutes them at Windsor Castle.

US-UK relations

The FT View. King Charles and the 'special' relationship

Save

Ties with the US need mending, but Britain must nurture other alliances too

The editorial board

 A smartphone displays the Meta logo, held in front of a screen showing green binary code.

Technology sector

Lex. Meta's Chinese stumble suggests declining tolerance for shades of grey

Save

Tech-related capital flows have benefited from decades of ambiguity, but AI changes the calculus

PREMIUM

 Several young people play pool and socialize in a modern youth center with colorful circular ceiling panels and lounge seating.

Parenting and families

Why London’s teens need more third spaces

Save

At a time when young people are either demonised for staying in or going out, youth clubs are more important than ever

Emma Jacobs

 Sunset light shines through clouds over the methane terminal's silhouette at the Port of Dunkirk, viewed across water and tall grasses.

EU energy

The EU’s methane regulation could spark an energy crisis

Save

Its extraterritorial, prescriptive and paperwork-heavy requirements will restrict access to supply options

Andrew Puzder

 A Lufthansa Airbus A320 waits on the tarmac at Prague airport, with another airplane visible in the background.

Airlines

Lex. Why flying less won’t do much to ease the oil crisis

Save

Crude demand weakens when not only jet fuel but other product prices rise too

PREMIUM